

Cornell School of Industrial and Labor Relations
Ives Hall, B07 Tower Rd
Ithaca, NY 14853

Justin Bloesch
Email: jb2722@cornell.edu
sites.google.com/view/justin-bloesch

Research Fields

Labor Economics, Macroeconomics

Professional Appointments

Cornell University, Department of Economics and School of Industrial and Labor Relations

Assistant Professor, 2023

Columbia Business School

Post-Doctoral Research Scholar, 2022-2023

Roosevelt Institute

Fellow, Macroeconomic Analysis, 2022-2023

Education

PhD in Economics, Harvard University, 2016-2022

BS in Economics and Applied Mathematics, University of Wisconsin-Madison, 2010-2014

Publications

Bloesch, Justin, and Francois Gourio (2015). "The Effect of Winter Weather on US Economic Activity." Economic Perspectives. Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago.

Working Papers

"When do Firms Profit from Wage Setting Power? Dynamic Monopsony vs Concentration," (2023) with Birthe Larsen.

"Which Workers Earn More at Productive Firms? Position Specific Skills and Individual Worker Hold-up Power," (2022) with Birthe Larsen and Bledi Taska.

"Congestion in Onboarding Workers and Sticky R&D," (2023) with Jacob Weber.

"Structural Changes in Investment and the Waning Power of Monetary Policy," (2021) with Jacob Weber.

Presentations

2023: EIEF Rome Junior Conference in Applied Macroeconomics, Rome; Imperfect Competition in the Labor Market, IAB, Nuremberg; Reserve Bank of Australia; Copenhagen Business School, Copenhagen.

2022: Stanford SITE, The Macro and Micro of Labor Markets.

2021: Copenhagen Business School, Copenhagen; Search and Matching Conference, Copenhagen.

Honors and Fellowships

Harvard Multidisciplinary Program in Inequality and Social Policy, Stone Fellow

Teaching

2023 ILRLE 2400, Economics of Wages and Employment, Cornell School of Industrial and Labor Relations